What is an Age Friendly Community?

A community whose physical, social and service environment enables older people – and people of all ages – to live in security, enjoy good health and participate in society.

Waterloo World Café Event and Web Launch

The Murray Alzheimer Research and Education Program (MAREP) at the University of Waterloo, and partners, will announce the launch of a new web-based tool to guide communities towards developing solutions to become more age friendly.

This will be followed by the World Café, hosted by the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Age Friendly Communities. Community members, organizations and agencies that work with older adults, and city staff, are invited to attend to share their experiences and discuss the next steps towards creating an age friendly Waterloo.
